This book is a collection of stories, events and conversations that were written from my son's first-hand experiences from his service as a Peace Corps Volunteer (PCV) while serving 9,000 miles away in the Fiji Islands. These stories were written between May 2007 and August 2009, during his time served there. Michael called his stories dispatches, and he emailed them on a somewhat regular basis. I have found them to be of interest because he shares with us the intimate island life and experiences of an American living in a Fijian village. There are moments of online discussions that occur spontaneously without any planning. His writings take us to the sights, sounds, smells, and emotions experienced during his volunteer service, which were not always so picture perfect.
